

Strategic Planning

Assisting businesses to define, direct and make decisions to achieve their goals

The Why

The key objective of a strategic planning process is to provide clear direction to the key stakeholders of the business. It also assists the owners in monitoring and controlling the implementation of strategies within the business to create focus, energy, incentive and fun for the team involved.

Once completed, the document becomes a key element to future decision making and creates a culture of accountability. It can also be provided to providers of capital, including banks, potential investors or acquirers, members of the board and professional advisors.

“...a strategic plan becomes the basic roadmap to success”

The How

The process commences by understanding the “NOW” issues – essentially a diagnostic of the business as it currently stands.

The next step involves the facilitation of a two day strategic planning workshop to identify the major issues confronting your business. Broadly, this workshop addresses seven simple questions:

1. Who?
2. What?
3. When?
4. Where?
5. How?
6. Why? and the always difficult;
7. But, should we or shouldn't we?

During the two day workshop, we also complete “the page behind the page” to identify the businesses sustainable competitive advantage.

There are four key decisions in the strategic planning process:

1. Getting the right people (aligned with the core values and purpose)
2. Long term goal
3. Strategy
4. Short term focus – critical numbers for the year and each quarter

Our point of difference

It's one thing to offer a Strategic Planning service but much like everything – context and experience are both paramount. In this respect, the team at Koustas & Co are veterans of the OPSP process and believe in the methodology so much that the Directors and team members of the firm subject themselves to the very same process each financial quarter. It's a constant area of focus that leads itself to making better and more timely decisions and open and honest lines of communication.

Importantly, our experienced professionals spend considerable amounts of time with clients during the pre-workshop planning and post-implementation phases to ensure that the strategic plan formulated during the workshop is both meaningful, relevant and implemented to its fullest extent.
